DETAILED ACTION

Allowable Subject Matter

Reasons for Allowance

1. The following is an examiner's statement of reasons for allowance.

Takeda et al. (USPN 6002351) teach a joystick (10) including a joystick unit (12) (Fig. 1) with bearings 30a and 30b or (32a and 32b) that are disposed on a same axial line so that the bearings 30a and 30b, and 32a and 32b have their respective axes that intersect perpendicular to each other at a same height level, and with an inner case 22 that has blades or disks 34 and 36 rotatably supported on respective side surfaces in a manner such that their rotational axes are perpendicular to each other (Fig. 2) wherein the joystick unit (12) is characterized in that one rocking member 40 is formed by an arcuate member having an elongate hole 44 formed in a lengthwise direction to have support shafts 46a and 46b at respective ends (col. 4, lines 23-60 and Figs (1-3).

Nakamura (USPN 6670945) teaches a multi-directional input apparatus including a rod-like operating member 30 inclingly operated in arbitrary circumferential direction around its lower portion, a set of upper and lower turning members 40A and 40B, a hoisting and lowering slider 50 and a spring 60 for resiliently holding the operating member 30 at its neutral position, and a hoisting and lowering member 70 which is operated up and down by the operating member 30 (col. 4, lines 50-60 and Figs. 2-3).

The prior art does not teach a joystick, including an operating member, which has shaft portions respectively protruded from both side faces thereof; an upper rotary member, which supports the operating member so as to be pivotable in a first direction; a lower rotary member, which supports the operating member so as to be pivotable in a second direction perpendicular to the first direction; and an urging member, which urges the lower rotary member and the upper rotary member so that the operating member is situated at a neutral position thereof, wherein the lower rotary member has an elongated hole through which the operating member is passed, and the elongated hole extended in the first direction; wherein the shaft portions are rotatably engaged in shaft holes which are formed in side walls of the elongated hole; wherein expansion parts are formed on the operating member so as to expand within the elongated hole in the first direction; and wherein the operating member rotates through the shaft portions so that both side faces of each expansion part slide along both inner wall faces of the elongated hole.

Any comments considered necessary by applicant must be submitted no later than the payment of the issue fee and, to avoid processing delays, should preferably accompany the issue fee. Such submissions should be clearly labeled "Comments on Statement of Reasons for Allowance."
